MCA Nachola Ward, (Hon. So when you come here, when there is a processing, you see we are bowing down showing respect to the mace, this the power, the simple of power you give respect to the mace and to the speaker.

This is where now we do the administration thus making legislation of the Government. So, when you come here, you have come to a very big House. You know in the County Assembly we have got only two arms that is the County Assembly and the Executive but in the National Government we have Parliament, which consists of the Senate and the National Assembly, the Executive headed by the President, and the Judiciary. We have three arms there, and I hope you have been told how the three arms function. Without taking much time, because I am a teacher and as a teacher you must teach, with that much thank you Mr. Speaker.
